

Chris Fitzpatrick - American - Chris has been teaching English for more than 20 years. He joined BCC/SESP in 2014.

Chris Fitzpatrick was born in Washington, DC, in the United States and is an English Instructor at Baish Community College (BCC). He degreed in English at Wesleyan University and certified as an ESL instructor while teaching for the government of American Samoa. Chris taught at Akenohoshi College in Japan, where he became an Assistant Professor of English, and at Aomori Public University, specializing in Business English, for a total of nearly thirty years. He has also been active in journalism, as a reporter for a Scripps-Howard business journal and as a regular contributor to the Asahi Evening News newspaper in Tokyo, Japan. In 2014-2015, Mr. Fitzpatrick worked as a teacher for SESP in Baish, Saudi Arabia, and was a member of the Program Committee and the Health and Safety Committee. He can be contacted at c_fitzpatrick@sesp.edu.sa